PARTY PLEDGE.

That Is His Demand, and He Hopes to Reconcile Conflicting Factions.

ALBANY, Dec. 1.-When the Legislature convenes a week from to-day legislation. Th. Governor, who re-turned from New York Saturday, will devote considerable time during the coming week to framing a direct nominations bill which he believes will be acceptable to all Democrata, irrespective of factional differences. While in New York he conferred an agreement can be reached on a direct primary law within a day or two.

While he is still uncertain as to some details, the Governor has in mind alternative propositions for the Legislature to consider. One is the complete extermination of the State Convention. extermination of the State Convention; the other the restriction of its functions to the adoption of a party platform with a more elastic provision permitting the nomination of minor candidates if this limitation is rejected by the Democratic gislative leaders. The Governor's general plan for elec-Is Now Working on Measure tion by petition of Governor, Lieutenant-

Governor and the other five State offi-cials in accordance with the Federal scheme for the election of United States Senators, the presentation of the names of candidates by number, without party designation, and with the application of the Massachusetts vallet law so far as

t can be applied in this State.

The greatest jeopardy to the conrummation of the Governor's plan seems to be the disinclination of legislators to return to Albany before the regular session, which begins the first week in January. The absence of a quorum would, of course, prevent the enactment of any legislation.
